Slick graphics. Good images. The text, however, is a poor fit for first grade. The fill-in-the-blank questions are fairly low level but the text (what students would have to read in order to learn the answers to the questions) is way beyond first grade level. The informative text on the pages is very small font and too hard to read (syntax, grammar, vocabulary) for most first graders. A parent or teacher would have to read each page aloud. Also, the text does not address all of the content that the pictures do, so some instruction needs to come from a parent or teacher.

I feel for a first grader, the presentation of the subject could have been better. For many, this is a new subject and it would be nice if it were to feel and look exciting. The pages are black and white and when I think Geography, I think color- especially for a first grader!

This is perfect for introducing Geography to the 1st grade level, very pleased with purchase. Has a sticker chart inside to track progress and encouragement. Using as supplement in homeschooling routine.

Short, fun, exciting lessons keep my first grader engaged, and the star stickers upon completion of each lesson rock. 47 lessons total, a page each. Fast moving and lots of opportunity to "add on" other topics you touch on with the lesson.

Geography? Intimidating for a homeschool mama! But this has opened up some really awesome conversations and helped spur on ideas for games. There are also complimentary resources on Pinterest!

My son and I both love this. My only complaint is that it comes with a waxy type paper so pencils must be very sharp to work, pens work best.

Awesome workbook! My son just finished kindergarten and is going into first grade. These are a challenge but not frustrating for him. Excellently put together.

Since my daughter hasn't received a geography class, this was great to help her learn about the world
