Customer Reviews

Middle school students enjoy reading the book on their own, great images and attention-getting headlines, some info about black holes may be out of date but overall a good resource to add to a classroom or to buy for kids at home.

National Geographic's Everything series contains over a dozen books that will jumpstart the exploration of science and history topics. Everything Space begins by exploring the space in our neighborhood then branches out to examine the secrets of the universe. Space programs and heroes are featured along with an exploration of facts vs fiction. The book is filled with fascinating diagrams, infographics, photos, charts, and other appealing visuals. Librarians will find that this entire series will fly off the shelves. Each short, highly visual book is chuck-full of fascinating facts that will ignite the imagination.
